

individual tickets for day and evening programmes.

Dornie man's CD to raise funds for wildlife charities

A Lochalsh man who penned a poem about endangered species has had his work put to music with the recording of a CD in order to raise funds for wildlife charities.

Ted Carter from Dornie was watching a programme about the possible extinction of tigers and other animals and was moved to write the poem, "Call of the Wild".

His son-in-law, Paul Oakley, who lives with Ted's daughter Brenda in the south of England, composed some music and had the poem sung by a friend of his. Various other people in Suffolk, where Brenda and Paul live, have helped with pressing 1,000 CDs and with printing labels.

The CD can be purchased at Kyle Pharmacy — where Ted's wife Jessie worked for many years — for £2.50 or downloaded for 99p from www.pauloakley.com/cotw

All proceeds will go to the Born Free Foundation, the Whale and Dolphin Conservation Society and the David Shepherd Wildlife Foundation.
